

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Kenneth R. Miller is Professor Emeritus of Biology at Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island. He grew up in Rahway, New Jersey, attended the local public schools, and graduated from Rahway High School. Miller attended Brown University as an undergraduate and earned his Ph.D. in Cell Biology at the University of Colorado. His research work on cellular membranes has been published in journals such as Cell, Nature, the Journal of Cell Biology, and Scientific American. His popular books include Finding Darwin's God—A Scientist's Search for Common Ground between God and Evolution, and most recently The Human Instinct—How we Evolved to Have Reason, Consciousness, and Free Will. His honors include the Public Service Award from the American Society for Cell Biology, the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of Biology Teachers, the AAAS Award for Public Engagement with Science, the Stephen Jay Gould Prize from the Society for the Study of Evolution, and the Laetare Medal from Notre Dame University. Miller lives with his wife, Jody, on a small farm in Rehoboth, Massachusetts. He is the father of two daughters, one a wildlife biologist and the other a high-school history teacher. In his free time, he umpires high school and NCAA softball.

Joseph S. Levine was born in Mount Vernon, New York, attended public schools, and graduated from Mount Vernon High School. He studied at Tufts University and earned his Ph.D. in Biology working between Harvard University and the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole. He has taught at Boston College and Boston University, and at the Organization for Tropical Studies in Costa Rica. Following a fellowship at WGBH-TV, he served as science correspondent for National Public Radio, and as scientific advisor to NOVA for programs including Judgment Day, for OMNI-MAX films including Coral Reef Adventure, and for the PBS series The Secret of Life and The Evolution Project. He designed exhibits for state aquaria in Texas, New Jersey, and Florida, and has led seminars and professional development workshops across the United States, Mexico, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Indonesia, Malaysia, and Singapore—where he served as “Outstanding Educator in Residence” for the Ministry of Education. He was recently elected a Fellow of AAAS. Levine lives in Concord, Massachusetts, a short distance from the Old North Bridge, and Thoreau's Walden Pond.

